Laura Hatfield, twenty years old, the daughter of Fletcher S. Hatfield, of No. 14 Mohican-st., disappeared from her home on Sunday afternoon, when e went out for a walk in Claremont Park, and was not found until yesterday morning.

The girl was a student at the Normal School, and the records and the teachers' statements show her would have been graduated has year, but persistent study resulted in an attack of brain fever on the day on which she was to take her final examinations in May, 1898. When she finished the first year she secured 88 per cent general average, 92 per cent the second year and 98 per cent the third year. Her Reachers think that she would have been perfect at the last examination. When she recovered from her filness her faculties were not as acute as be-More. In preparing for the examinations she spent ost of the time it study, and on the day she was to be examined she remained up all night. The physicians advised that she abandon all study for Since that time she has spent a good deal of time in Claremont Park. She occupied one deal of time in Claremont Park. She occupied one deench, where she read or indulged in contemplation. The policemen and people who frequented the park came to know her. She was always quiet, but there was an apathetic indifference about her that was in strange contrast to her former industry. The girl was found in a piece of woods near High Bridge, by Policeman Dillon, of the High Bridge station. Her diothing had been soaked through by grain, and her hair was unkempt. She was dazed, and it was apparent that she had been wandering about all night without knowing what she was doing. She let the policeman take her out of the woods and to the police station, where she was cared for until her father went to the station (for her. The girl's physical condition was not as had as her appearance would indicate. She could not tell what she had been doing.

DEVERY STARTS THEM GUESSING

LONG ISLAND CITY POLITICIANS PUZZLED BY A POLICE TRANSFER.

Chief Devery, in making a place for a new tain, caused a big stir in the Long Island City part of Queens Borough yesterday afternoon, and last night the politicians were endeavoring to learn if it was simply a chance assignment, or if there was any politics in the transfer. Captain Hickman, who had been serving with Captain Chapman, learning the duties of a captain, was ordered to the Newtown precinct to replace Captain Timothy White. Captain Hickman was captain of the Whitestone police when that village came into the city. His appointment as a policeman was recognized, but not his elevation to the captaincy, and he was ordered to duty as a patrolman. He fought the case in the courts, and was recently ordered reinstated as captain. Since then he has been under nstruction under Chapman.

To make room for Captain White, Chief Devery ordered Sergeant Thomas Lynch, who had been acting captain at the Hunters Point station, to duty at Borough Headquarters, under Deputy Chief Clayton. This brings White to the Hunters Point

It is this part of the transfer that bothers the politicians. In the old Long Island City days, when there was a continual fight going on between Mayor Gleason and the Jeffersonians, every one was either a Gleason man or an anti. In those days Captain White was most emphatically a Gleason man, and an active one, and incurred the enmity of men who are now recognized by the city government as being high up in the counsels of the party. To these men the transfer of Captain White to his old home came like a thunderclap wholly unexpected. It was expected that if Captain White was not kept in Newtown he would be transferred to a more distant point. Last night he dropped into the station, where he did duty as patrolman and roundsman, like a bomb, so far as the politicians were concerned. It was thought there was strong anough influence in the borough, especially in the Hunter's Point district, to relegate White to the utmost boundaries and the worst precincts, but it would not appear to be so, or else the transfer was so unexpected and considered so utterly unlikely that nothing was done to prevent it. Captain White has always been a good officer.
